

Inclusive Education

Adapted and Modified Programs

Adaptations

Adaptations are available to all students.

Adaptations are teaching and assessment strategies so students can achieve the learning standards of the subject or course.

A few examples of adaptation are:

- Breaking up assignments into smaller parts
- Demonstrating learning in different ways, oral exam or visual representation.
- Using speech to text technology

Modifications

Modifications are for students with diverse abilities who are not able to access the learning standards of the curriculum.

The decision for a student to be on a modified program will take place in their grade 10 year. Parents will be consulted prior to their child being on a modified program.

Students on a modified program are assessed in relation to the goals and objectives established in their Individual Education Plan.

Looking for more? Additional information on this topic is available within our Parent Guide to Inclusive Education: <https://newwestschools.ca/parent-guide-to-inclusive-education/individual-education-plans/>

Questions about your individual child's needs? Contact your school principal.

